

Hosting: Control Panel?

Does SCR offer or plan to offer a control panel for website control?

Currently we do not, however we plan to make some things available in the future. You can request an email administration account for your domain email so you have the ability to add, remove, and change mail accounts. However, on the site hosting portion we will probably retain the build and configuration in-house completely. The reason for this is it offers better customer service as well as it ensures that the site is configured properly for the long term success of the site.

We also feel it gives customers better access to knowledgeable staff for advice about hosting, design, and/or search engine optimizations that other hosting companies don't make readily available to their customers. At WebNexus/SCR we want the customer to feel that they are welcome to contact us for anything concerning their site and not just if they have a problem.
